David Winning

Film & Television Director

38 Features, 29 Series, with over 150 TV credits. David is mainly known for his work on Gene Roddenberry's Andromeda, MGM's Stargate: Atlantis, ABC's Dinotopia and the HBO thriller Exception to The Rule, starring Kim Cattrall, Sean Young and Eric McCormack. A proven and prolific director of feature films and many television series in virtually all genres – he was a dreamer kid from the Canadian prairies, making movies at the age of ten with a Super 8 camera in hometown Calgary, Canada. At 18, he made his first short drama Sequence, and expanded the plotline into his first feature film STORM, produced on a shoestring in the summer of 1983. At 27, he landed directing gigs on the Canadian-produced Friday the 13th: The Series for Paramount Pictures; for this television debut he received three Canadian Emmy Award nominations. His second feature followed in 1992 with Killer Image, a plot-twisting photographic mystery-thriller starring Michael Ironside and veteran character actor M. Emmet Walsh. Throughout the 1990's and the 2000's he directed more movies and episodes of over twenty-five series from kid's shows to westerns to science-fiction. M. Night
